About the Course

This dermatology symposium brings together nationally and internationally recognized faculty to address a variety of hot topics in dermatology vis-à-vis evaluation and management of common and exceptional dermatologic disorders.

Who Should Attend

This program is specifically designed to be of particular interest to physicians and residents specializing in dermatology and dermatopathology. Nevertheless, we encourage any physician (e.g. Internist, Pediatrician, Family Practice physician) or physician extender (nurse practitioners or physician assistants) with an interest in skin and/or whose practice includes the frequent evaluation and management of skin disease to attend. A basic understanding of dermatology is assumed for all attendees.

Objectives

At the conclusion of the course, participants should be able to:

- Differentiate patients with chronic idiopathic urticaria and angioedema from those with autoimmune urticaria and urticarial vasculitis
- Formulate appropriate therapies for urticaria, angioedema, and urticarial vasculitis.
- Identify and quantify the risk for melanoma based on nevus phenotype.
- Explain the current uses, limitations, and emerging applications of dermoscopy in helping clinicians classify skin lesions as benign or malignant.
- Recognize essential dermoscopic structures, their histologic correlates, and dermoscopic criteria for classifying skin lesions as benign or malignant.
- Examine the mechanisms of action of standard and new acne and rosacea therapies.
- Evaluate the role of inflammation in acne and rosacea.
- Generate a differential diagnosis for acne vulgaris and determine treatments for patients with acne-like conditions.
- Define musculoskeletal inflammation in psoriatic arthritis and compare clinical and imaging features across types of arthritis that may exist among psoriasis patients.

Dr. Lee Lumpkin Memorial Lecture

Lee R. Lumpkin, M.D. was head of the Division of Dermatology and Professor of Medicine at the Albany Medical College from 1972 to 1991. He graduated from the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine in 1953. His residency in dermatology was at Walter Reed General Hospital in Washington, D.C. and he completed a dermatopathology fellowship in 1965 at the AFIP. Dr. Lumpkin was a United States Air Force dermatologist from 1961 to 1972. He was Chief of Service and director of the residency program in dermatology at Wilford Hall USAF Medical Center, Lackland Air Force Base, Texas from 1969 to 1972. He retired as a full colonel from the United States Air Force and came to the Albany Medical College of Union University where he was director of the residency program in dermatology from 1972 to 1982. He retired from the practice of medicine in 1991. He was a diplomate of the American Board of Dermatology, and a fellow of the American College of Physicians, the American Academy of Dermatology and the American Society of Dermatopathology. Dr. Lumpkin was a superb physician, a brilliant dermatologist, an excellent professor and an extraordinary teacher. His residents and students respected all aspects of the great physician and fine person that he was. Although he passed on June 3rd, 1997 a part of Dr. Lee R. Lumpkin lives on in the residents he taught and the care that they give to their patients.
